Journal Page

1 - Most of us at some point have said something to the effect of “well, God must have different plans” when something happens that we don’t understand. Take a moment and write out a description of one of those times in your own life. _____

2 - From your description above, trace backward the choices you made leading up to that event and consider how they worked together in the formation of the outcome. If you could go back in time and change just one of those choices, which one would it be, and how do you think it would have effected the outcome? _____

3 - Looking back on that same event can you see where God may have been working through your circumstances, and the lives of others to help you move in a certain direction? What can you do to help yourself recognize Gods leading in-the-moment, instead of “after-the-fact”? _____
